PROPOSING BY PHONOGRAPH.

An Original Scheme of a Very Bashful

Young Man and Its Success. While a phonograph was on exhibition up town a short time ago it was put to a ure which even the "Wizard" Edison probably never thought that it would be. At an hour when there were but few in the place a well dressel, good looking young man came in and stood for some time watching and listen-ing to the wonderful machine. After a short se he entered into an carnest conversation with the man who was operating the instru ment. At first the operator were a mystified look, but that gradually melted into an amused smile as the conversation went on Finally he seemingly consended to the young man's wishes and they both went closer to the phonograph. The visitor looked nervously and, but as there was no one near by, he began taiking into the machine. He said only a few words, and then, turning to the operator, he said earnestly;

The man smiled again and nodded his head The next day at about the same hour the nervous visitor of the day before appeared at the place again, but this time he was not alone. Accompanying him was a pretty young woman about 19 years old. The young man was more nervous than ever, a while the couple were looking about the pa examining the different articles of interest the young woman noticed her companion's uneusiness and spoke to him about it several times. He passed the matter over lightly though rather awkwardly, and assured her that there was nothing the matter with him. She plainly saw that something was wrong

Another magnes to force berself to the front by merit alone of her surpassing charms was Emma Lyon. She owed nothing to a mother's watchfulness and care, as did the bild of the shims, the offspring of a house muld's intropic and a cust off waif of the streets. Her publical was passed amid all the surroundings of abject poverty and irre-documble vice. At 15 she was a nursery maid immature, but already showing prom-ble of great beauty. In Graham, a notori-ous quark of the day, pieced her out of the gutter, and othered her in his fectures on health, the half clad girl posing before her employer's andleness at the goldess Hygeis. After this the painter flomney grew infatuated with her, and placed on numerous can-vases delineations of her glorious form and of a middle aged scholar named Greville, and under his tuition stored her mind with a great variety of learning and accomplishments. Now, fully equipped for her battle with the world, site deserted her bushand, secured a divorce, and married Sir William Hamilton, the ambassador of Great Britain at the court of Naples. The chronicles of that day are filled with accounts of her social triumphs, her keen wit and intelligence, and her superb beauty. She held her own, despite her past, at the court of St. James and on the continent, until one morning there sailed into port, after victory over England's foes, the famous Lord Nelson. The complications arising from her subsequent acquaintance with the great admiral barred her from respectable circles. and a few years after Nelson's death she to avoid her London creditors. Still another woman who was the toast of her day had the fortune to be blessed in her youth with beauty, and also inherited rank She was "of the purple," and knew nothing of obstacles such as those which Elizabeth Gunning and Emma Lyon were compelled to overcome. Victoria Maria Luisa was the fourth daughter of the Duke of Saxe Cobourg Saalfield. Born in 1786, she married when 17 years old the Prince of Leiningen. He died in 1814, and in 1818 his widow wedded the Duke of Kent, fourth son of George III of England. The next year Victoria, presqueen of Great Britain, was born to the pair. The picture of the Duchess of Kent herewith given is from a painting by Lawrence, and at the zenith of her attractiveness,

MRS. JAMES MONROE. Lawrence also painted a portrait of Lady Elizabeth Gower, who in 1819 married Earl Grosvenor, eldest son of the Marquis of Westminster. She became in due course of time Lady Westminster, and lived to a great old age, preserving, even to the last, traces of the loveliness which distinguished her youth.

Americans generally are familiar with the romance surrounding the family of Baltimore Bonapartes. It was a notable event when the clie of the Monumental city married the brother of the French ruler and, as the papers of the time declared, "cemented the alliance between the countries of Washington and Lafavette." But the first consul did not propose that his imperial plans should be disturbed by his brother Jerome's regal wife as anything save Miss Patterson. The divorce which he insisted on caused a rupture between Napoleon and Pius VII, and the Baltimore beauty insisting that she was and would remain More Jerome Bonaparte, crossed the seas and desnite her marital separation shone in foreign society as a bright particular star for years. She returned to America in 1834 and ended her life in her native city.

One of the lovely women of a past gener ation well worthy of mention is Elizabeth K. Monroe, the wife of Jumes Monroe, for eight years president of the United States. Her naiden name was Kortright, and her father had been a captain in the British army. Mr. Mouroe, when he secured her hand, was a congressman from Virginia. The weiding took class in 1786, and from the hour when their fortunes were joined at the altar Mrs. Monroe by her grace, her charm of manner and her tact, greatly aided the future president in conciliating fees, making friends and carving out a career.
